

My very favourite English word

Take 2-3 minutes.

Think about the English word you like most.

Think about what it is that makes it your very favourite word.

What makes that word special to you?

45 responses

it reminds me my first love

I love feeling cozy

The meaning

people find it difficult to pronounce it reminds me of my childhood

It reminds me of a song that i love in a special way because I like traveling and exploring new places

It motivates me I can become a better person

the meaning

What makes that word special to you?

45 responses

Fluffy: I like the way it sounds and the images that come to my mind when I think of that word

What makes my word special is the sound, how how i feel it flowing between my lips and, of course, what this word reminds me of, which is the happy times spent with my siblings when i was young

Discombobulated: the sound it produces when it is pronounced

I feel the way it sounds makes it special and unique. It takes me back to my childhood and it is connected to a really heartfelt passion of mine

EXPERIENCE : It's what makes me grow.

it's a word I used so much in high school and we loved that is hard to pronounce to make fun of our classmates

What it represents despite the beautiful sound, that reminds me of something calm and peaceful, it makes me think of the way society wants us to be it personally reminds me of the time i've spent in the US, my host dad used to say "where right on schedule" every single morning, so it's a word which is stuck on my mind and has a great meaning to m

What makes that word special to you?

45 responses

Sunset: is a word that reminds me of a time of the day where I feel peaceful

I chose slightly because I like the way it sounds and I also think it's an useful word brehtaking can be used in a lot of contexts and I think it is the best compliment anyone could ever give possibility- life gives us endless possibilities to choose from

I don't think there is a word that describes what overthinking means in Italian. I am, myself, an overthinker.

how common is for even non-speaking english people to use it to communicate the sense of extreme devotion to someone or something that this word has.

Dream: you should follow your dreams to achieve your goals

Architectural: I like it because I was never able to pronounce it correctly

It is a word that cannot be translated exactly in another language but it is a mix between happiness and sadness. I also like the sound of this word

What makes that word special to you?

45 responses

it's a cute name for a cute bug and it's onomatopoeic

QUIET I love the way it sounds and my teacher always says it to me because I'm too chatty

the word "today" makes me think that each day is unpredictable and can hide something special Literature: well first of all it's a funny word to say. To me it represents the expression of the soul of a country.

Gratitude: You need to be aware of everything you have and give it importance and value, because nothing is obvious

It is my favourite flower and also it is a beautiful composed word which means the flower of the sun

A folly in architecture shows me that something complex and beautiful can also exist without purpose

I have a deep sensitivity and in my everyday life I search for the beauty of art and nature.

The sound of the word and the fact that in any context (for me) is a positive thing. Sweet

What makes that word special to you?

45 responses

Moonlight: I once read ancient civilisations thought that you could go crazy from staring at the moon too long, I tried it and was addicted to looking at the moon ever since.

"remarkable" - I've recently learnt to use this word to describe myself or some things that I do and it's special to me because I tend not to recognize my victories. I think of it as a sign of growth

I like how it sounds

I choose the Word "cinnamon" because it reminds me when i used to cook cinnamon biscuits with my grandma

it's a mental and physical state that makes me feel good, both alone and in company

Life is my favourite english word because usually I'm not able to live the situation, i fell always inferior compares to the others so there are many songs that talks about that and help me to improve because it represents my desire to discover the world and to acquire knowledge about other cultures

Heaven: it sounds very angelic and reminds me of something bigger and supernatural. It is a soft and gentle word that has various meaning

Dionysian makes me feel reckless, powerful and brave

Thanks for sharing!

Your answers will be uploaded on Moodle

SCAN ME

6

